Dear our newest investigator,

Welcome to Galactic News, we are so happy to have you on board. I am aware that you only just joined us, but we already have an assignment for you.

The Atlas Project seems to have had a murder on board one of its research ships, and we need to get the story out by tomorrow. It has been reported that Captain Jordan has been killed in suspicious circumstances. We have access to all the investigation files, but the authorities have yet to release the results of their investigation. You can take a look at any of the files you desire, but DON'T touch the brown envelope just yet.

Just find out the Suspect, the Motive and the Method.

Feel free to work with other investigators. Your notebook is in the box with some pins, string and markers for your convenience. I encourage you to take notes and mark important information. You cannot afford to miss anything; your job depends on it.

Once you think you have the answers, please note them down on the last page of this document. We need to get this to the editors as soon as possible to make the front page tomorrow.

Once you do, open the brown envelope. If you did your job well you should have solved the case and your Suspect, Motive and Method should match the investigators. They will include their evidence if you are interested in that sort of thing.

If however you didn't get the same results, unfortunately for you, we will have to let you go. We just can't have bad reporting at Galactic News. So good luck!

When you think you have things solved, write it down here so we can get it to our writers and editors. Don't forget to include your evidence. Good Luck!
